

Only At

What's New(s)? Gratitude

We're beginning our fourth year at the Walker House, and we'd like to send you brief updates on what's new and newsy at the House, truly one of the world's treasures. This first update covers the condition of our hearts, which are just brimming with gratitude.

Four years ago, we might have said about our work at the Walker House, "Let's see how far two academics can take the Walker House." Today, we realize it's more truthful to say, "Look at what our guests and friends have helped us accomplish, despite us being academics." And so we say, "Thank You!" We thank you for believing in us when we doubted ourselves and for carrying us to this point in 2015, a year filled with so much promise and change for us.

Next visit... It's Up And Flushing OR The First Lodging Room In The 200-Year History Of The Walker House With A Private Bathroom. Reviews so far are favorable: "It's so cozy." "It feels warm and homey." "Love the high ceiling."

Dan and Kathy Vaillancourt